

Rosebery School Sixth Form

Monday 7 September

Dear all,

Welcome back everyone. It has been a busy week for us, welcoming and orientating all our students so that we can get back to lessons and our learning from Monday. But it has also been a lovely week. The common room started to sound as it should, a noisy, happy place. Carol is back too!! The final piece to the puzzle for all of us is getting back into the classroom.

Whether you are Year 12 or 13 I hope coming in this week we made our message clear. You are returning not to make up for what was lost, nor to recover your ability. You are coming back to carry on being the best you can be.

When you are feeling like the mountain ahead is too tough a climb, remind yourself; once you could not speak and now you can, once you could not read and now you can, once you could not even smile and now you can.

Learning has, and never will be, easy. You must not settle to learn as much as is in the book, you learn the book so that you can write new chapters. You are not trying to be as wise as your teachers, you listen, so that you can be wiser. You are not trying to be as compassionate as the kindest person you know, you are learning to be kinder so you can guide this old world to a better future.

Above all else, as we start this academic year, ask yourself the question, "Where is the love?" Then remember the answer is, "Right here, right here." It is in you, in your family, in your teachers and support staff. If you promise yourself to be brave, we promise to catch you as you fall.

Let's go.
